HUGE WAVE SWAMPS NEVADA'S LIFEBOATS

Convention Adopts Advanced Platform On Social Issues

Pattullo Emerges With Increased Prestige As Great Provincial Liberal Gathering Concludes Sessions

National Unemployment Scheme and Consideration of Shorter Work Week Urged; Mrs. M. E. Smith Again Elected President

Special Dispatch to The Victoria Daily Times

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—Every phase of social, economical and governmental activity was covered in the broad-gauge, progressive and truly Liberal declarations of policy laid down by British Columbia's great Liberal convention, which concluded its strenuous sessions in the Hotel Georgia after midnight this morning.

After two days of devoted and fervent attention to an extraordinarily comprehensive agenda the 600 delegates have scattered to their homes imbued with optimism and determination. They left convinced that no force can stand before the organized advocates of Liberal principles applied to government in British Columbia.

They went away inspired and cheered by the demonstration of province-wide solidarity that the great gathering had afforded.

NEW LIBERAL SPIRIT DOMINATES—If the specific statements of delegates throughout the two days are any criterion, the chief appeal of the Liberal Party from now until general election time, will be on a policy of "Liberalism," interpreted time and again in the convention as meaning the word in its broadest sense, rather than in a party spirit.

PATTULLO PRESTIGE INCREASES—They gave to their leader, T. D. Pattullo, a whole-hearted demonstration of confidence in his ability and trustworthiness and they laid down for him and the government, they expect him soon to form, a code of instructions touching every phase of governmental activity.

Mr. Pattullo emerged with increased strength as party leader, backed up by many affirmations of confidence in him. The spirit of the convention on numerous occasions seemed to be to entrust to him the formulation of policy into action, should the Liberal Party be successful at the polls.

Frank Gott Apprehended After Search in Lillooet Killing Case

Frank Gott, alleged killer of Game Warden A. E. Farey near Mocha in the Lillooet district, was captured this morning by Game Warden R. M. Robertson, who wounded him in the leg before making the arrest.

Edmonton Surprised At Warm Weather

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Oct. 5.—Reports from the Pacific Coast of record warm weather were received with utter unconcern here to-day.

Victoria reported all records for October were shattered with an official reading of 75 degrees. The snickering noise that many have heard as far as the Pacific Coast was Edmonton laughing up their respective sleeves at Victoria's unfounded jubilation.

In Edmonton the official reading was 80 degrees in the shade and points, hundreds of miles north of this city, came close to the mark that "balmy Victoria" proudly told the world about.

MIDDLE WEST RECEIVERS ASK $21,000,000 FROM U.S. FINANCE CORPORATION

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Toronto, Oct. 5.—Edward Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General of Ontario, to-day said an Illinois capias for the arrest of Martin Insull would have no authority in Canada, unless certain legal steps were taken here to make it effective.

Mr. Bayly said he had had no word from State Attorney John A. Swanson at Chicago in regard to Insull.

LABOR SHOWS SWING TO LEFT

British Convention Declares For Establishment of Socialistic State

Canadian Press
Leicester, Eng., Oct. 5.—Sweeping aside the objections of Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, veteran leader of the party, the Labor Party of Great Britain, in annual conference here to-day, carried by general assent the main policy resolution declaring the establishment of a Socialistic state to be the main objective of the party.

This programme will probably include the proposal for nationalization of the Bank of England and joint stock banks. It would not, of course, affect the constitutional position of the Crown, should the Labor Party come into power and carry out its programme.

Mr. Henderson, far from welcoming the full-blooded resolution, warned the conference against the consequences of adopting it. Amid interruptions and cries of dissent he declared the conference would merely tie its hands.

Survivors of Ship Disaster Tell How Twenty-nine Others Swept To Death In Pacific

BLOMBERG IS MODEST HERO

Young Seattle Man Plunged Through Seething Seas With Life Line

Third Officer Stull Supervised Rescue; Tells Details of Wreck

When Eddie Blomberg, twenty-two-year-old Seattle boy, a deckhand on the American Mail liner President Madison, plunged into the bitterly cold surf off Amatignak Island carrying the thin, strong line which meant safety for the three survivors of the wrecked freighter Nevada, he did not think he was doing anything heroic.

"I can't figure out why I should be singled out for all this attention. Any man in the boat could have done it," Eddie said when surrounded by a group of newspapermen hungry for details of the epic rescue on the arrival here this morning of the President Madison.

While the rescue boat, commanded by Third Officer E. J. Stull of Seattle, was pulling toward the shore from the Madison, the crew argued about how they would save the castaways, it was revealed.

A motor launch towed the lifeboat to a point about a quarter of a mile off the shore and then cast it clear. Amid the rolling seas the lifeboat drew toward shore but it became apparent it could not be beached.

SEVERAL VOLUNTEERS—Several members of the lifeboat crew shouted for the chance to swim ashore with the line.

"I said 'let's toss for it,'" said Eddie, "but we found that no one had any money."

"The chief said Jack Davis and I had shouted first and should get the chance," so stripped off my clothes, down to the woolen underwear, took the line and went over the side.

"It was only a matter of 100 yards to the beach, but the sea was fairly rough. The water was about forty-six degrees."

"One big wave tossed me on to a rock. Then another swept me off and up to the beach."

The three survivors greeted him as if he were Santa Claus. He lost no time about getting them off safely, tying each one to the line in turn for the haul back to the lifeboat.

LAST TO LEAVE—Eddie stayed on the beach until the three were safely aboard the lifeboat. Then he followed.

On board the Madison, Blomberg was hailed as a man with the stuff of real mariners. He comes from West Seattle and is an only son. He chose a seafaring career after graduating from West Seattle High School in 1928.

The other side of the rescue story was told by Third Officer Stull. Both he and Blomberg gave the major credit in the rescue to Capt. Healy, who dared to take his big ship so close to the rockbound coast in its errand of mercy.

Stull's work is vividly told in his official report of the incident. It reads as follows:

"I launched No. 2 lifeboat at 12.40 p.m. Proceeded in tow of motorboat in charge of Wm. Wallace, junior officer. Vessel lying one to two miles off east shore of Amatignak Island."

TWENTY PAPER MEN HERE TO "COVER" NEVADA

The main body of the reception committee which met the survivors of the Ss. Nevada disaster on board the liner President Madison this morning, consisted of twenty newspapermen from various cities on the Pacific Coast and a battery of twelve cameramen. Through the courtesy of American Mail line officials joint interviews with the survivors and heroes of the rescue were arranged and the principals then spent a half hour out on deck with the cameramen. Stills and movies were shot from every angle, with all members of the lifeboat crews as well as the other notable getting in the films.

TRADITIONS OF SEA UPHELD

Men of President Madison Risked Lives in Engulfing Surf to Save Men of Nevada

Passengers Tell of Magnificent Work; Volunteers Eager to Man Lifeboats

The traditions of the sea were nobly upheld by Capt. Richard J. Healy and the officers and men of the Ss. President Madison in the rescue of three men from the freighter Nevada. It was left to the passengers on board the President Madison to tell of the heroic role played by Capt. Healy and his men.

"The rescue was magnificently carried out," said William North, manager of the First National Bank, Tientsin, who is bound from China to New York. "Words fail to describe the heroic work we witnessed. The men clamored to go to the aid of the men on shore, although it appeared they were braving certain death."

"It was great to see those men, lifebeaters, with a heavy smile, go over the side in the rescue boats. It didn't seem possible they could live in that sea."

How Blomberg got through with that line no one knows. It was a merry thing to do. But all his mates wanted to do the same thing. He happened to be the first to volunteer.

"The work of Third Officer Stull and Junior Officer Wallace is deserving of every commendation. When it was feared that the lifeboats would be swamped, the seamen manning them refused to return to the ship when there were men alive on shore."

NEVER FORGET IT—

"I shall never forget it as long as I live," said Mrs. L. Astrachan, wife of the manager for Universal Films of the Madison and is en route to Chicago with her two children.

"We got a real thrill when we heard of the wreck and realized the ship was going to the rescue."

"Capt. Healy deserves a lot of credit for the rescue of these sailors. Had the ship been a few hours later it is doubtful if they would have been saved."

Seventeen-Year-Old Boy's Graphic Story

Wireless Operator Bravely Faced Death at His Post As Crew Abandoned Ship; Three Castaways Without Food and Shelter For Two Days on Desolate Beach

Twenty-nine members of the crew of the United States freighter Nevada were swept to their deaths by a huge comb which capsized two lifeboats shortly after they had been launched last Tuesday evening, three men dived to their death the next morning and three others reached the forbidding shores of Amatignak Island to suffer and shiver for two days before being rescued.

The three survivors of this great tragedy, James Thorsen, seventeen-year-old cadet from Portland, Ore., Fritz DeWall, able seaman of San Francisco, and Gonzalo Decanay, a Filipino from Manila, arrived here early this morning aboard the American Mail liner President Madison.

THE SURVIVORS—DeWall was in bed suffering terribly from stomach trouble, caused by fuel oil he had swallowed, and the ship's doctor refused to let anyone see him.

Thorsen was visibly affected and before facing the barrage of questions from the gathering of newspapermen, buried his face in his hands and strove to keep his head buried in an ugly gash on his head which he received when he was dashed against the rocks of Amatignak Island.

Decanay, dark-skinned, dressed in a blue pullover and pair of overalls, puffed at a cigarette and smiled at questions were thrown at him. He was content to let Thorsen tell the story of their terrifying adventure. He was the only man who knew what happened to Capt. T. W. Johansen, master of the Nevada, C. O. Johnson, third officer, and William Robertson, wireless operator, who remained aboard after the two lifeboats pushed off. Decanay happened to look seaward the next day and saw three figures leap overboard into the raging surf. They never reached shore.

Thorsen smiled gamely as he told in simple language the sad story of how the ship crashed and snapped in three pieces, of how his shipmates had drowned beside him in the raging sea, of his struggle to the shore, his exhaustion and then his search for other survivors, of the intense cold, hunger, and the stark fear that they might rescue ships to the position.

THE HEROES—Thorsen spoke feelingly of the two heroes of the tragedy, the carefree, laughing Eddie Blomberg, Seattle youth, who swam ashore with the life line, and William Robertson, the wireless operator, who unflinchingly went to his death in a desperate effort to follow up his SOS call, and direct rescue ships to the position.

Thorsen told the whole story to newspapermen in the social room of the President Madison this morning.

"I was on the bridge when the ship struck," Thorsen said. "It was about 8 o'clock in the evening. There was a dense fog and we were proceeding at our usual speed. The sea was running very high."

"A dull, grating noise told me we had hit. The ship lifted twice or three times, grating again and again and then seemed to rest."

WAS ON THE BRIDGE—Thorsen was at the wheel on the bridge with Chief Mate E. T. Wendt, of Portland, and Thomas Fairchild, the second officer. Captain Johansen was summoned immediately and a quick survey showed the ship was in danger of breaking up quickly.

ABANDON SHIP—"The engines were stopped and then the officers sounded the life alarm and the whistles to abandon ship," Thorsen continued.

Abandonment of the Nevada was carried out in orderly fashion, although the seas were breaking over the starboard side. Two boats were launched into the darkness of the lee-side.

Captain Johansen, Third Officer C. A. Johnson of San Francisco, and William Robertson, the wireless operator, stayed by the ship when the crew cast off in the lifeboats.

Convention Adopts Advanced Platform On Social Issues

The delegates were outspoken in declaring that the public state of mind was such that it would not tolerate election promises made to be broken.

The Liberal creed as expressed in resolution stated that the party was "a believer in union in the full meaning of the term—not a union of discord," and gave Mr. Pastullo a free mandate.

Regarding unemployment, the convention urged a national unemployment scheme and an inquiry into the possibility and desirability of introducing a shorter work day during the week in business and industry in British Columbia.

MRS. SMITH AGAIN HONORED
 Before breaking up the convention elected a new slate of officers. Mrs. Smith, reinstated as their provincial president.

The outstanding events of the final day of the convention were the eloquent speeches by G. O. McGeer, K.C., advocating national banking and use of the national credit to alleviate unemployment and restore prosperity for the masses, and by George S. Pearson, M.P.P., for Manitoba, outlining the party's unemployment policy, embracing unemployment insurance and the better organization of industry.

UNEMPLOYMENT MEASURES CONSIDERED

Introducing the unemployment resolution, Mr. Pearson insisted that a monetary solution would not cure unemployment, nor could a reversion to primitive conditions of existence without disrupting social conditions to an extent that people would not tolerate.

There were many ideas for handling unemployment that the resolution focussed on their main principles:

1. That every man unable to get food, clothing and shelter through unemployment must be provided for by the state.
2. Unemployment insurance.
3. Co-operation within industry to extend the field of employment by among other methods, shortening of hours.

SHIRKED GOVERNMENT

The reason the unemployment problem was so acute was because the present government had refused to accept the problem as permanent, Mr. Pearson said.

"Industry is not doing all that it can in its own sphere to organize for periods of depression," he said.

ministers took up the municipalities' viewpoint. The municipalities were compelled to pay one-third the cost of relief without having any say in the policy, despite repeated pledges that they would be heard in, and decided by, the municipalities.

"At present we are not allowed to give more than ninety-six hours relief work in a month, or failing that, we give them the dole and we are all opposed to the dole," said Mayor Gray.

"The government suggests $15 a month relief allowance for a man and his wife, yet they pay $17 for the keep of a dolehouse child and demand eighty cents a day to cover half the cost of a child's keep in industrial school. If that is right how can we keep a family on $15 a month?"

AGAINST RELIEF HUMILIATION
 Several women spoke strongly in favour of unemployment insurance, denouncing as degrading the compelling of working men to go to relief offices for doles.

ABOUT ELECTION EXPENSES
 In advocating compulsory registration of voters and provision of free copies of voters' lists to political parties, William Brashwood of Vancouver said most of the expense of electioneering was registering and polling voters. It was this for which campaign funds were mostly needed, and the contribution of the quid pro quo that contributors doubtless exacted would more than offset the public expense of keeping up and publishing the lists.

The meeting was not unanimous, but the resolution passed with a big majority.

COMPENSATION BOARD AFFAIRS UP
 A resolution urging the repeal of the Workmen's Compensation Act with a view to making any needed amendments, was withdrawn on suggestion of George S. Pearson, M.P.P.

"Some of us know certain amendments are essential," he said. "You can safely leave that to Liberals who have your interests at heart, but if you pass this resolution and encourage the Conservatives to tamper with the act, you will be sorry. They were going to do it last session and if they had done so, you would have had H. D. Twiss as chairman. Do you want that?"

David Pitkethly of Vancouver East argued an appeal—board—and was backed by Dr. Peteraki in behalf of the medical profession.

Veteran labor men, however, protested that it was the corporations and lawyers that wanted appeals—not the working men.

"Appeal to the courts will put the working man back under common law, which is what this act was designed to save you from," said M. O'Neill of Kamloops, a railway man.

MARKET EXTENSION URGED

A. M. Manson, K.C., former Attorney-General, was given a cordial welcome when he made his only appearance at the convention, having been engaged in the court throughout the proceedings. He spoke as mover of a resolution in favor of market extension efforts for the basic industries and for expansion of the tourist traffic through maintenance of the highways.

He took occasion to speak generally, however, on the task confronting the convention. He expressed himself as a believer in fundamental and eternal Liberal principles, but predicted that the people in the next election would not vote for Liberal or Conservative.

"There is no magic in union—in combining men of different political faiths, but there is every reason why we should leave free to invite into his cabinet men whose special qualification is their devotion to the public welfare, regardless of party," he said.

He evoked a storm of protest when he conjectured that 90 per cent of those present could not state in intelligent terms the difference between Liberal and Conservative.

"It is evident the speaker has not been here these two days," shouted a delegate.

BARROW PROPOSES

AGRICULTURE AND
 The resolution urging free land for settlers and a representative board to recommend a scientific plan of agricultural marketing was expounded by E. Barrow, former minister of agriculture, after being moved by Dr. K. C. MacDonald of Vernon.

"Experience of the past two years has emphasized as never before the need for a scientific plan of agricultural marketing," he said. "Because in places where land is seasonal, men could make themselves self-sustaining by growing some products while working part time in nearby industries."

"TAKE GUTTER OUT OF AGRICULTURE"
 The great problem of the farmer, said Mr. Barrow, was in getting a better system to prevent over-production of perishables.

"The farmer doesn't know what to produce, because he hasn't the information to enable him to foresee what the market will be," he said. "We need more intelligent direction of the farming industry."

"It is time something is done to take the gamble out of agriculture, so the farmer can grow that for which there is a market," he said, "and so he can make his commodity economically."

"We need more intelligent direction of the farming industry."

MUNICIPALITIES OVERBURDENED
 Mayor Gray denounced the government's unloading of social service costs on municipalities while cutting their revenues—and providing for no increase in the slightest default on bond obligations.

"A receiver may close down your schools to get the money for his bond holders," he said.

His resolution that the whole basic provincial and municipal revenue and expenditures must be reviewed and revised was enthusiastically adopted.

PROVINCIAL OFFICERS ELECTED
 Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith was accorded a notable ovation as she was elected for the third time president of the B.C. Liberal Association on the fortieth anniversary of her arrival in the province.

Other officers elected were: Honorary presidents—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and T. D. Pattullo, M.P.P.

Vice-presidents—H. G. Perry, Prince George; Dugald Donaghy, K.C., Vancouver; H. Herdridge, Nakusp; Dr. K. C. MacDonald, Vernon, and John Hart, Victoria.

Canadian Commerce Chamber Committee Makes Public Report on Dominion-Provincial-Municipal Increases

Montreal, Oct. 5.—W. L. McGeer, chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce national committee on public finance, to-day made public figures purporting to show government debts in the Dominion are greater than the total capital employed in all forms of manufacture in Canada.

Another set of figures, a statement by Mr. McGeer said, revealed the rate of increase in government debts during the last eighteen years had been four times the increase in total assets of all Canadian chartered banks and six times the increase in value of the Dominion's external commodity trade.

Gross government debts in this country of $5,500,000,000, he said, represented an increase of about 400 per cent between 1913 and 1931. In the same period, his statement continued, total assets of all Canadian chartered banks increased 100 per cent, while total deposits increased 103 per cent and the external commodity trade 64 per cent.

The statement said W. Sanford Evans, M.P.P., Winnipeg, had shown by statistical evidence that between 1913 and 1931 the Dominion had increased its gross debt by 2,127,000,000. The same researches purportedly revealed that between 1913 and 1931 the Dominion's liability provincial governments increased by approximately $1,000,000,000, and the gross debt of municipalities, including schools, without taking into account unfunded debts not completely available, by approximately $1,014,000,000.

Mr. Evans estimated the 1931 gross debt represented a per capita liability of $140 every person in Canada, while in 1931 the per capita liability stood at $500.

Dr. R. E. McKechnie and Dr. P. A. McLennan Testify at Hearing in Vancouver

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—The last medical witness was called for the defence today in the trial of the $40,000 action by Mrs. Eleanor Plowright against Dr. G. E. Seldon for alleged failure to set her hip. It is expected the case will conclude late Friday.

J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., defence counsel, put Dr. Frank P. Patterson, specialist in bone and joint surgery, on the stand.

A ripple of laughter passed over the crowded courtroom when the doctor inadvertently seized a small medical textbook instead of the Bible as he was about to read the opening prayer.

Like Dr. McKechnie and Mr. P. A. McLennan, previous defence witnesses, Dr. Patterson is a graduate of McGill University. Since the war the doctor has continued his practice to bone and joint work. He has pursued post-graduate studies in cities of Europe and the eastern United States and Canada.

X-RAY DISCUSSION
 Dr. Patterson would have postponed an x-ray in Mrs. Plowright's case, and he supported Dr. Seldon in that respect. He also testified that Dr. Seldon had applied the accepted method for reducing the dislocation. An experienced surgeon, he added, could tell when a hip bone goes in. The tests, applied by Dr. Seldon, were correct, he would be confirmatory, he explained.

Dr. Patterson thought the plaster cast was the best treatment in Mrs. Plowright's case. He would not have removed the cast before the surgeon appointed by Dr. Seldon; and he, again, would not have taken an x-ray after the reduction operation.

Canadian Press
 Vancouver, Oct. 5.—Further evidence endorsing the method of Dr. George E. Seldon in reducing the dislocation of Mrs. Eleanor Plowright's hip was given today by Dr. R. E. McKechnie, one of the leading surgeons of Vancouver.

Mrs. Plowright is claiming $40,000 from Dr. Seldon for damages for alleged failure to set the hip and her husband, Lawrence Geoffrey Plowright, seeks a judgment against the doctor for $5,000 expenses and $2,500 for loss of his wife's services.

Dr. P. A. McLennan gave evidence Monday supporting Dr. Seldon.

Dr. R. E. McKechnie followed Dr. Farris, who testified that he had examined the patient on Friday, when she was given evidence by Dr. R. E. McKechnie, one of the leading surgeons of Vancouver.

Two Searches Leave Mysteries Unsolved

Canadian Press
Calgary, Oct. 5.—The problem of Walter Marling, living and dead, today was still unsolved, and the search of parents for their son had crossed with the search of a son for his parents.

Several months ago Walter Marling of Carleton Place, Ont., started a search for his parents. He came to Canada twenty-five years ago with a Mr. and Mrs. Merry as his guardians. He served overseas during the war and cannot recall his parents.

When his inquiries about his parents were made, the notice came to the attention of Mr. and Mrs. John Marling, Hull, England, who thought the Canadian Marling might be their son Walter Marling, who was reported missing in the Great War. Mr. and Mrs. Marling previously had been making inquiries about their son in the hope he was still alive.

Communication with police here was made by Mr. and Mrs. Marling through a relative, Mrs. Clara Daniels of Vancouver.

With birth certificates and other official information uncovered, police have learned the English Walter Marling had never been in Canada prior to the war, and being officially reported missing in the war there was no hope of finding any record of him being in Canada after the war. Finally, a picture of the English Marling was obtained, and it was evident the Canadian Marling and the English Marling were two different men.

And to-day the search of the Canadian Marling for his parents continued, while the parents of the English Marling were still hopeful of finding their son.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 5.—Allegheny County commissioners have learned 90,000 tons of coal lies beneath the new municipal polo field and that work on the field cannot be finished until they buy the coal—12.8 acres of it. ### ONLY POLICE BROADCASTS

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—Bandit-chasing cars in suburban upper Darby township are to be equipped with radio sets, but the sweet voice of the crooner will not be heard. ### INDIAN PROPHET DIES

Yerington, Nev., Oct. 5.—The Indian prophet Wovoka, whose fanatic doctrines symbolized by the ghost dance spread like wildfire among the Indians in the late eighties, died unnoticed in his squalid hut near here this week and the body was buried in a sandy grave on the shore of Walker Lake without honor even among the members of his own tribe, his passing became known only today and served to recall a troubled period in the west.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 5.—Gustave Baumgart, a baker, won his fight to keep the cellar door to his bake oven open. The city wanted to padlock it for non-payment of a $9-a-year minor privilege tax. ### ENTHUSIASTIC NUDIST

Several witnesses have testified the quantity necessary for health and well-being is three pints daily.

MUSSOLINI PRAISES LAWYERS

Rome, Oct. 5.—Premier Mussolini paid a compliment to the Italian lawyers today at their national convention by ascribing to them a place higher than the poets and philosophers who produced the renaissance. ## Tells Reason For Apple Day

W. Ellis Brown, Kiwanis Club Head and Chairman of "Y" Committee, Sees Drive as Investment in Good Citizenship.

"As a constructive force in building up good citizenship among our boys, the value of the Y.M.C.A. has long been apparent to the business men of Victoria as well as to others who have come in contact with the youths who have had the benefit of the association's training," W. Ellis Brown, president of the Kiwanis Club and chairman of the "Y" Apple Day Committee, stated when questioned on the uses to which the proceeds from the annual Apple Day drive would be devoted.

"For some years it has been the policy of the Kiwanis Club to sponsor a group of boys in the association, but the scope of our club is comparatively limited. The expenses of other community work carried on almost solely by the 'Y' falls directly on the Y.M.C.A. although the association gets no direct remuneration for such services. Naturally it can be seen the Y.M.C.A. must necessarily incur a considerable deficit in this work. To avoid the deficit, the services would have to be abolished. Such a step would be a direct hardship to many young boys who not only gain keen enjoyment from their classes, but also derive considerable moral as well as physical benefits from them. It is therefore necessary to appeal to the citizens of Victoria to help support this highly commendable activity of the Y.M.C.A."

"As one means of securing support, the 'Y' goes to the city each year with an 'Apple Day' campaign. Last year the response from the public was very gratifying. It is expected the citizens will be equally generous this season. They may rest assured they are making very sound investments in good citizenship when they buy their apples from boys and men who will be offering them as 'tags' a week from next Saturday."

DORMAN'S IN LARGER STORE

Rapidly Growing Business Makes Larger Quarters Necessary

With their move to a completely remodeled store, Dorman's records a big advance, culminating twenty-two years of business in Victoria.

Long recognized as a standard of quality and value in men's clothing and furnishings, Dorman's was originally located at 1328 Government Street. A rapidly-growing business dictated a move to larger quarters and a few months ago the new premises on the corner of Douglas and Johnson were decided upon.

The building next the Doane Block was completely renovated and altered, the new store being now one of the most up-to-date establishments in Victoria. Added value to the public is possible through the low overhead and operating cost of the well-planned store, the saving being offered direct to the patrons.

Mr. Dorman expresses every confidence in Victoria as holding a glowing future and his faith has been expressed in a store that the city may be justly proud of.

DUNCAN LEGION HAS WORK PLAN

Special to The Times

Duncan, Oct. 5.—Children should be instructed in the meaning of Remembrance Day, and school boards should have the matter explained in the schools on November 10, in the opinion of Cowichan branch of the Canadian Legion. A resolution to this effect was adopted on Monday evening, at the instance of J. Low of Chemainus.

A suggestion that unemployed young men be employed on construction of a truck highway to the Peace River, advanced by the Kamloops branch, was considered unworkable because of lack of means of organizing and financing such an undertaking. Cap. Groves suggested as an alternative that young men be enlisted in the militia for special service, not military, but to perform useful work under discipline. The machinery for such a scheme was in existence, he pointed out. The provincial command will be asked to ascertain the basis of statements that the ex-service men's wing of Esquimalt Mental Hospital has not been occupied since completion two years ago.

RETIREMENT AGE DEBATED

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 5.—There was a keen debate at yesterday's session of the General Council of the United Church of Canada here on a recommendation that all officers of the church retire when they reach the age of seventy years, but the council took no definite action, referring the question back to committee for report. The subject will probably be reopened tomorrow for Friday.

The council affirmed its hopes that some form of amalgamation of church papers would be achieved and called for negotiations to be continued toward that end, especially as regards the New Outlook, the Record and the Missionary Monthly.

FIVE JUDGES AT SESSION

Justice Gallihier, Recovered From Illness, Rejoins Court of Appeal

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—Petitions of the British Columbia Bar were considered on his return to the Court of Appeal bench after a long illness to Justice Gallihier when the court opened its fall sitting here yesterday. For the first time in a long while the court's full complement of five judges was present. There were on the bench, in addition to Mr. Justice Gallihier, Chief Justice J. A. Macdonald and Justices Martin, McPhillips and A. Macdonald. A record list of over 100 appeals confronted the court. Chief Justice Macdonald fixed the date commencing October 24 for hearing the appeal of Earl Everett Robinson, former Vancouver police court clerk, who was convicted of stealing $177 from the city and sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. The same week will be taken up with other criminal appeals, including eleven from convictions and seven from sentences. W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills failed in an appeal from a judgment in the Supreme Court of Mr. Justice Fisher holding them personally liable in the sum of $103,666 at the suit of W. T. Johnson, who was trustee in bankruptcy of Theo. Frontier and Co. Ltd., a Kamloops firm of stockbrokers. Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald dissented in part. The judgment had been given against Solloway, Mills and Co. Ltd., and Solloway, Mills (B.C.) Ltd. in addition to the two outstanding principles of the firms. Solloway was reported to have returned to Montreal recently after a lengthy sojourn in France. Mills was last heard of in the United States.

CAUGHT AFTER LONG JOURNEY

Three Young Men Who Broke Jail at Walla Walla Held in Chicago

Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Three youthful prisoners who overpowered two guards in the Everett, Washington, jail, have learned Chicago is no haven for escaped criminals. Two days after their arrival in a car stolen in Everett and equipped with license plates stolen in Madison, Wisconsin, they were in jail.

They are Julian Ferguson, twenty-eight, Bellingham, Washington; Gerald Weber, twenty-two, Seattle, Washington; and Theodore Olsen, twenty-three, Bellingham, Washington.

"The word has got around that Chicago is easy," Ferguson said. "It is all bunk. I will never come here again. It was in Chicago I was arrested five months ago and sent to Washington for robbery."

He said, his pal, Bob Willison, committed suicide in the Birdwell jail before being arrested as he ran from a hold-up.

Ferguson told police he had been sentenced to five years in the Walla Walla, Wash., prison, and that Weber had been granted a new trial after being convicted, and that Olsen was awaiting trial. They overpowered the guard who came to take away their lunch trays September 23, he said. Locking him in their cell after taking his keys and gun, they overpowered another guard and fled from the jail. In Seattle they rented a car and started for Chicago, stopping beside a wrecked machine in Madison to remove the license plates. They were arrested in a hotel and at first refused to give their real names.

The trio will face victims of Chicago hold-ups for possible identification before being turned over to Washington authorities.

MURDER AND TWO SUICIDES

Skulany, Roumania, Oct. 5.—Two brothers, twelve, and fifteen, quarrelled while their parents were away at a wedding. The elder struck his brother with a hammer, killing him. Their sister, rushing in too late to prevent the attack, went mad. The parents returned and the mother, seeing what had taken place, committed suicide. The boy who had swung the hammer died. Later, in a nearby lake, they found his body.

STATE MEDICINE

Toronto, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Dr. R. S. Pentecost, president of the Canadian Academy of Medicine, said yesterday evening at the annual dinner of that body that state medicine, in his opinion, was the logical successor to public health legislation.

MANY CONSTRUCTIVE PLANKS IN LIBERAL PLATFORM

Important planks in the Liberal party's platform approved by the convention at its closing session in Vancouver yesterday proposed a definite scheme of land settlement, that the Dominion government adopt a national unemployment insurance scheme at the earliest possible date, that a public utilities commission be appointed, and that a provincial highway board be established with necessary powers to undertake and conclude a comprehensive survey of actual highway and road requirements to cover a period of years.

The scheme of land settlement which the convention approved suggests that lands be made available in classified areas to those who wish to engage in agriculture, free of charge, "in the hope that many citizens can be made self-sustaining, and pledging every legitimate assistance and encouragement to agriculture, and, further, that a board be established, representing producer, dealer and consumer, to bring in a finding to the end that production, distribution and marketing of agricultural products may be placed upon a basis that the industry will be invigorated and made capable of sustaining and directing itself in line with all other national basic industries."

In regard to this part of the platform it can be pointed out again that British Columbia's economic problem would be much simpler if it were not for the fact that more than half of its population is clustered in the three urban centres of Greater Victoria, Greater Vancouver, and New Westminster. The proposal that the land be given to intending settlers who show an aptitude for rural life and are willing to work, has much more merit than any plan to dispose of the P.G.E. by giving a bonus of millions of acres of land from which the citizens of British Columbia would derive small return. One hundred thousand more people on the fertile lands of the province would put us on Easy Street in a very short time.

The unemployment insurance scheme the provincial Liberal party urges upon the Dominion government would be on a contributory basis. The convention-based its argument in favor of such a scheme upon the contention that the problem of unemployment could only be adjusted by the application of many measures over a period of time. The proposal to establish a public utilities commission will be approved by the majority of the people of the province. At its annual convention for several years the Union of British Columbia Municipalities has unanimously gone on record in favor of the appointment of such a body. The need for it, of course, will become still more pressing with the further development of our natural resources, especially our water powers.

It will be remembered that about twelve months ago the Good Roads League of British Columbia recommended the appointment of a competent, non-partisan highway commission, and we take it that the Liberal party in convention has gone on record in favor of the plan. Under the present system, of course, a change in government always results in the appointment of a new Minister of Public Works, who sets out to make changes with a good deal of enthusiasm but limited experience, and often launches upon programmes that involve the expenditure of many millions of dollars before his mistakes become apparent, or the public hears of them. Moreover, it is to take the road question out of politics, to map out a programme and stick to it, to build roads according to the needs of traffic, and in accordance with funds available, as the Liberal policy emphasizes, that a highway commission is desirable. Any government must recognize, on the other hand, that it will require courage to adopt this business-like policy. Political machines will probably look askance at it; but Mr. Pattullo may rest assured that it will find favor with the public—which is more concerned with cutting down expenses than with the exigencies of party machines—if the administration he will lead next year follows out the convention's plan.

The discussion of the banking system need not have taken up the time of the convention, since this is exclusively a federal matter. In his speech during the South Huron election campaign, Mr. Mackenzie King made it clear that the federal Liberal party is pledged to the establishment of a Central Bank and the control of credit. Taken in the main, however, the platform drawn up by the convention delegates—and it was a record gathering for any political convention in this province—is a constructive one, the carrying out of which would go far to improve conditions in British Columbia and prepare the way for greater prosperity.

THE LYTON REPORT AND JAPAN'S REACTION

It is highly improbable that the League of Nations ever expected that Japan would accept the findings of the Lyton commission unless they supported what she had done in Manchuria. The purpose of the inquiry, however, was not to justify any special national interest in relation to this problem, but to obtain information and to make recommendations affecting all interests in the light of the aims and objects for which the League must stand and which it must pursue effectively if it is to endure.

The report of the commission finds that Japan's military activities in Manchuria were unjustified, that the puppet state which was created by Japanese military power lacks the support of the Manchurian people, and proposes the establishment of an autonomous territory under Chinese sovereignty with a Japanese-Chinese commission to work out a basis of settlement involving the best interests of all concerned. It embodies a warning against any policy which would result in the disintegration of China and the international rivalries this would inevitably involve, and insists that any permanent settlement must imply the recognition of the various peace treaties which both Japan and China have signed, notably the League Covenant, the Nine Power Treaty and the Briand-Kellogg pact, which the commission obviously concludes Japan has violated. It points out that the "present regime is opposed to the interests of China, disregards the wishes of the people of Manchuria" and the commission doubts if it "would ultimately serve the best interests of Japan."

The report punctures the fantastic report sent out from Japanese sources for propaganda purposes several weeks ago that the Lyton commission approved of much that Japan had done in Manchuria, just as it disposes of the specious pleas that Japan's military operations were merely designed to suppress "bandits" and that they had no ulterior purpose. If Japan's case is as strong as Tokyo claims it is there should be no occasion for broadcasting palpable fiction of this kind. Whether the outside world is as stupid as the authors of these reports appear to think it is, or not, it knows that Japan has taken administrative control of Manchuria and means to retain it regardless of every other consideration if she can. It knows that she wants it as a buffer state against Russia, as an outlet for her surplus population, as a source of supplies for her industry and as a means of maintaining a stranglehold in China.

The world can easily understand Japan's purposes in these respects, since many of the other great powers have grabbed territory for precisely similar purposes and have been just as crude in the grabbing as she has been. It knows, too, that the process has been very costly to the aggressors, some of whom have been everlastingly ruined by it, and that, in any case, it has been the cause of bloodshed and untold suffering. Conditions for successful adventures of this sort now are less propitious than they ever have been. In a purely material sense they would cost more, and nations already groaning under crushing taxation have no money with which to pay.

It is doubtful if there is any country in the world which could afford to pacify 30,000,000 rebellious people upon whom it tried to impose its sovereignty, incidentally hopelessly antagonizing one of its best trading markets, without involving itself in revolution at home. Even Great Britain, most successful of colonizers, has found some of her recent overseas territorial acquisitions, with whose people she is on generally friendly terms, an expensive business. She dare not impose any further considerable burden upon her own people without adding fuel to the communism which is now becoming rampant at home. Her prospects of borrowing, already severely limited, will inevitably be further restricted by her attitude toward the findings of the Lyton commission. Before long even the stimulus to national sentiment by outward defiance of world opinion will cease to have any effect, unless her military leaders resort to the familiar, but ultimately disastrous, device of seeking an external war for the purpose of diverting the mind of her people from their dissatisfaction with conditions at home.

Hence, Japan can not possibly maintain her present policy beyond a comparatively short period without wrecking herself, and this is what the Lyton commission report meant when it expressed doubt if in the long run that policy would be found in the interests of Japan herself. Indeed, if her present attitude did nothing more than to perpetuate the animosity of China towards her it would finally be catastrophic, because of all the planks in the platform of her foreign policy, friendly relations with her populous neighbor should be the most important. For the same reason it would be to her advantage to establish an accord with Russia.

That Japan has very urgent problems nobody can fairly deny. She must have an outlet for her population which is rapidly increasing in spite of all means to check it, or she will blow up. She must have raw materials for her industries. She must expand her foreign trade. She must improve her financial situation. But she will learn that all of these can be gained only through the good-will and co-operation of the rest of the world. She can not gain them by force or by thumbing her nose at the fifty nations represented at Geneva. The Lyton commission, composed of able, impartial statesmen, has provided her with a means of meeting her legitimate requirements by conciliatory measures which would win the good opinion of the world. If she shall isolate herself from that good opinion by trying to emulate the mailed fist policy of imperial Germany, she will follow the Hohenzollern, Romanoff and Hapsburg empires into the bonfire.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LITERACY IN CANADA
 The Globe and Mail

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has been studying the recent census returns and has discovered that literacy is growing in the Dominion. There are still 665,505 persons over five years of age who cannot read or write but many of these have not got started at school. There are 51,936 who can read but cannot write.

Ten years ago there were 615,167 persons over the age of five who could neither read nor write and 58,254 who could only read. But the number of persons over the age of five in 1921 was 7,730,835, whereas in 1931 this figure had risen to 9,202,371, hence the proportion of illiterate persons in the total population has grown. One per cent more females than males can read and write.

Loose Ends

Some more bad verse on a worse subject—a curious plea in a naughty world—a vile deed against a dumb animal—and an acid test for hangmen and statesmen.

By H. R. W.

PROVINCIAL STATESMANSHIP. I read in the public prints, is preparing now to balance the budget at any cost, even at the cost of completing the demoralization of the Civil Service. It is ready to render up the last full measure of devotion and cut the office boy's wages again. While the proposed reduction in Civil Service salaries may not occur, now that it has been revealed in advance and has caused such a row, still, the patriotism of the men who proposed it in the first place should not go uncelebrated. To celebrate it properly a nameless poet sends me some verses for which you must blame him, not me. It is curious how this nameless poet always sends me some verses at the very moment when there is a hole to be filled in this column. Anyway, he has stolen the old refrain of Gilbert and Sullivan thus:

When a statesman's finished
 Jumping on his staff, sir,
 He likes to lie a-basking
 In the sun.

But he seldom gets a kind word
 Or a laugh, sir,
 And his life is not
 A very happy one.

When a statesman sees
 That he must save the nation
 His heart is moved
 To bold and desperate deeds.
 He cuts the stenog's wage
 In high elation.
 For it's courage that
 The dear old country needs.

When a statesman's finished
 Taking all your money,
 He likes to shed
 A sympathetic tear.
 When he can't get other
 Revenues, it's funny,
 He just puts another
 Little tax on beer.

When a statesman ends
 A trying day of work, sir,
 He likes to lie upon
 The beach and sing
 From solemn duty he
 Will never shrink, sir,
 So he puts the election
 Off until the spring.

SPEAKING OF cruelty to dumb creatures, at the present time, I believe, we are supposed to be celebrating a period of kindness to animals, or something of the sort. The movement is promoted by world-wide organizations, which are trying to protect defenceless beasts from the insatiable brutality of civilized men. I see that Miss Doris Ketto has written to the newspapers about it, inviting public support for the campaign. One feels not only a keen admiration for such people who are spending their time in this discouraging pursuit, but also a little shame that it should be necessary. When these people reflect on the current situation, with millions of people all over the world, and some not very far away, on the edge of starvation; when they note all the leading nations arming themselves with every weapon of scientific torture to be used on non-combatants; when they see everywhere men's utter carelessness about the welfare of their neighbors, then I should think they would grow a little discouraged in their efforts to secure better treatment for animals than is generally accorded human beings. Still, the fact that there are people working to save animals from pain at a time like this indicates, I suppose, that somewhere in the human spirit is a small spark of better things which may yet be kindled some day. But at the moment its combustion seems rather faint.

SPEAKING OF animals, I see that the owners of the great horse, Phar Lap, who died from poisoning just after he had won his first big race in America, have had him stuffed. The extraordinary height, the deep chest and rippling muscles of Phar Lap were exhibited in a race track in the United States the other day, so well stuffed by an expert taxidermist that, with a jockey mounted on the remains, you would have thought the horse was alive. I can think of nothing more unappealingly vile than this. I can understand a taxidermist doing it. I can understand some ignorant horseless man doing it. But how a horseman can defile the lifeless body of a great horse in this fashion is quite beyond me. Such a person, no doubt, could see nothing wrong in stuffing the remains of a human being and exhibiting it to the public as the Russians, who have no other God, exhibit the embalmed corpse of Lenin. Phar Lap, or any faithful animal, whether he ever won a race or not, deserves something better than this. Those who deserve to be stuffed and exhibited to the public are the men who stuffed and exhibited Phar Lap. A properly conducted civilization and a real justice would give Phar Lap decent burial and stuff them. I doubt, though, that this stuffing would be worth the trouble.

IN BRITISH PAPERS which have just reached here there is much discussion of the famous hangman, Ellis, who recently killed himself. A lot of people have written to the newspapers to express horror at this man's successful career as the servant of many governments. Others point out, with perfect logic, that he was merely an instrument of a system, and that, after all, someone has to execute criminals if the state is going to take their lives. The test of one's attitude towards such valuable public servants, as one wise commentator points out, is this: Anybody would be proud to entertain the judge who had sentenced a man to death, but few would ask the hangman to dinner. From which he concludes that secretly we are ashamed of our system of capital punishment. Probably a better test of a hangman's place in society, and his right to associate with decent people is not our attitude but his. That is to say, if a man becomes a hangman and devotes his career to execution because of a high-minded desire to save the state, because he realizes that somebody must do this unpleasant work and he is willing to sacrifice his feelings in its performance, then one can have nothing but admiration for him. His patriotism is greater than that of the bravest soldier. But if he hangs people simply to earn a high fee, then he is a revolting monster who should be kept away from human beings and locked up in a cage until his services are required.

THE SAME TEST applies to most other public duties. I mean, a politician who shovels out patronage to party friends in the high-minded belief that party machinery must be kept together for the benefit of the state, lest its collapse may lead to public chaos—such a man is entitled to every praise. But a politician who shovels out patronage simply to get himself elected again to a fat salary, for him the Russian government has a quick and effective cure. The difficulty is to make the distinction between the patriot and the grafter. It all depends on their mental attitudes, and no known device is going on a statesman's mind? Who knows that anything is going on at all?

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES,
 OCTOBER 5, 1907
 From The Times Files

According to the latest reports the C.P.R. would appear to be preparing to construct a part of the Kootenay Central Railway from Golden to Fort Steele. It is reported that fifteen or twenty surveys have been sent in on this work.

At New Westminster yesterday A. McLagan, defeated Canada, the world's champion jiu jitsu wrestler, the contest lasting two hours. McLagan is said to have had the best of the game throughout.

The contract for the repairs for the steamer Otter, which was recently damaged through running on Danger Reef in a fog, has been let by the C.P.R. to the B.C. Marine Railway Limited.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy left at 9:30 this morning for his annual trip on the C.P.R. system for western Canada. He went on a special train composed of private cars.

INTEREST CHARGES ON OVERDUE TAXES

To the Editor:—Referring to a letter by Mr. L. G. Gray in the October 3 issue regarding tax penalty of 8 per cent applied over a period of three months, this has nothing whatever to do with the 8 per cent per annum stated in the heading above on "Notes of Annual Rates and Taxes," which is an additional 8 per cent charged at the end of the year on the amount due; also on the penalty. If you owe $100, the penalty of 8 per cent will be added and you will pay 8 per cent on $108 for the year overdue. If this is not correct I shall be glad if some kind reader will inform me to that effect, and when the change was made.

In other municipalities in B.C. 15 per cent is added for one day overdue (figure this out, the penalty is 8 per cent at the end of the year. Thus if you owe $100 you are charged 8 per cent interest on $115. This applied to Victoria until the act was changed. The provincial government refused to allow the city the same power as Vancouver. In Vancouver city there is no penalty, but straight 8 per cent charged on all unpaid taxes, which seems by far the most just system as the penalty only affects those who have non-revenue-producing property—that is, property on which the landlord cannot collect the rent, or cannot find a tenant to occupy his property, and vacant property that has to compete with city-owned lots in selling. As a matter of fact it has no real value. The fact that the municipalities have the right to confiscate within a stated period "without due course" through the courts and have absorbed the revenue of the titleholder many times over by fictitious assessments should be all the penalty allowed. Where the taxation is without consideration of ability to pay and an individual has to rely on his bank account or his hard-earned wages, there should be no such penalty. It is blackmail legalized.

TAXPAYER.

MR. SHEPPARD'S CHAGRIN

To the Editor:—Poor Mr. Sheppard—he knows them not. Truly his letter of recent date expressed most noble sentiments—sentiments worthy of a better cause.

He tells us he lacks the experience of a politician. That is obvious, otherwise he would have realized that to change men's hearts on political views overnight is a rather hopeless undertaking. Truly his cup of bitterness is filled. To think that his idol, Mr. Neill, has been tried and found wanting. Poor Mr. Neill, a most estimable gentleman in his own Scotch way, who, alas, like most Scotchmen, has views of his own.

DE COULTAS
 1309 DOUGLAS ST.
 (GROUND FLOOR)

The last time I went to church I have vague recollections of how, with tears in his eyes, he turned over the Seven Keys of Baldpate or something to a Mr. Armishaw. At that time I was under the impression Mr. Armishaw was "The Man." Why, my dear Mr. Sheppard, the change, or was he only one of the lesser deities? Then the National Councils. If I recollect aright, didn't Mr. Sheppard at one time hope to bring them within his fold? Perhaps they were a bit too conservative? To tell us they have sold out is indeed a heavy blow!

Being an ordinary working stiff who never had the time to play politics, I am at a loss to advise Mr. Sheppard as to the best course to pursue. But I can tell him this: Independent parties never get very far and for several reasons you cannot get reformers to agree on one thing for any length of time. Mr. Sheppard's own political experience should have taught him that. Independent movements are narrow and full of intolerance. Mr. Sheppard's letters to the press are shining examples of this very point. He brands the members of a kindred organization as a bunch of disgruntled politicians. Did it ever occur to him that other people besides himself put service before self? Some of the men he refers to were once office holders high in the realm of Conservatism. After the Kamloops convention they saw the handwriting on the wall and were foolish enough, at that time, to tell the multitude of that which was coming upon them. An old story, Mr. Sheppard—the prophet and his country. They didn't expect political plums, else they would have played their cards in a different manner.

No, Brother Sheppard, I'm afraid you will wait a long time before a Moses comes to lead us out of the wilderness—too long, in fact, for either of us—unless, of course, you take the rod up yourself. Remember when Knox and Martin Luther took what they accomplished without money, experience or publicity? Perhaps thirty years from now my children (if I have any) will hail you as the savior of the country. So don't worry very much about Mr. Neill and the rest of the tribe.

In closing, my dear Mr. Sheppard, be of good cheer and remember, the

Women's Canadian Club Reviews Year's Activity

Paid-up Membership of 1,073 and $600 in Bank, Reports Presented at Annual Meeting Yesterday Reveals; Executive Elected; Conference Reports Interesting Feature

The Women's Canadian Club closed the twenty-third year of its existence with a membership of 1,073, all in good standing, and a balance in the bank of $399.03. This gratifying state of affairs was recorded in the very comprehensive report presented at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon by Mrs. D. B. McConnan, the secretary, her summary of the year's work showing that the club is making a valuable contribution to the cultural life of the community, while at the same time fostering a Canadian consciousness.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Mrs. W. G. Wilson was re-elected by acclamation, and amidst enthusiastic applause, to the presidency, together with the other officers, as follows: First vice-president, Mrs. Alfred Carmichael; second vice-president, Mrs. S. J. Willis; secretary, Mrs. D. B. McConnan; treasurer, Mrs. G. D. Christie. The seven other members of the executive were balloted upon, the election resulting as follows: Mrs. Herbert Anson, Mrs. Chas. McConnan, Mrs. J. W. Gibson, Mrs. McConnan, Mrs. Herbert Pendray and Mrs. Phil E. Taylor.

Mrs. McConnan's report noted that sixteen lecture meetings took place during the year, with a total of distinguished speakers, and various social occasions were included in the club calendar, some arranged with the object of raising funds for the club bursaries and other requirements, some being of more purely social character. Among the latter was the reception of the Canadian Club for the courtesy extended members to hear all addresses given before the members of their club.

FINANCES REVIEWED

In her report, the secretary included special thanks to the soloists and accompanists who had helped the club during the year, and to the Men's Canadian Club for the courtesy extended members to hear all addresses given before the members of their club. The treasurer's statement, printed copy of which were handed to each member attending the meeting, showed receipts for the year totalling $1,939.00, the chief items in which were membership fees totalling $1,134 and administration fees totalling $847.00. Expenditures included rental of the Empress ballroom for meetings, expenses of delegates attending the Association of Canadian Clubs convention, affiliation fees in the association, and various expenses incidental to correspondence and secretarial requirements and speakers' expenses.

CONFERENCE REPORT

Mrs. Wilson, the president, presented a delightful report of the recent association conference at Regina, during which she paid warm tribute to the splendid work accomplished by Mrs. F. B. Burch, chairman of the Regional Council of British Columbia. In this connection Mrs. Wilson read a resolution recently adopted by the Men's Canadian Club of this city in which they congratulated Mrs. Burch upon the report which she made as chairwoman of the regional council to the conference of the Association of Canadian Clubs, and thanking her for the very able part played by her in bringing about so satisfactory a solution of the difficulties heretofore existing between the National Association and the Regional Council.

AFILIATION DISCUSSED

Mrs. Wilson reviewed the discussion on the financing of the councils and pointed out that the Women's Canadian Club of Victoria was only partly affiliated with the association under the present scheme by which it contributed twenty-five cents to the association and the other twenty-five cents to the Regional Council of British Columbia for the assistance of smaller clubs in the province. At this juncture Mrs. Wilson also reminded the members that its annual fee of $1 was paid in advance of the meeting of the club, her stand at the conference being that it was better to have 1,000 members at $1 per member, than only 500 at $2.

Knox Y.P.S. Held Harvest Pageant

The Knox Presbyterian Young People's Society presented a religious harvest pageant on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, this being part of the special harvest festival services which started on Sunday morning and evening. The church was decorated by the society with gladioli, rose lilies, sheaves of wheat, etc. The front of the church was specially attractive with an abundance of fruit and vegetables, donated by members and friends of the church.

Rev. J. S. Patterson, chairman, welcomed everyone present. The characters in the pageant were farmers and their wives coming to thank God for the wonderful harvest, the costumes being very appropriate. During the pageant Miss G. Knapp played a piano solo entitled "In the Sweet By and By"; Mrs. Reg. Scoble and Mrs. J. S. Patterson sang a duet, "In the Garden"; Mrs. Simpson gave a recitation, "Billie's Rose"; Mrs. J. S. Patterson sang a contralto solo, "Hold Thou My Hand"; and Reg. Scoble a bass solo, "Love Lifted Me." The accompanist was Lawton Farrington. Those taking part in the pageant were: Misses Margaret Roe, Iola Mitchell, Agnes Stevenson, Louella Patterson, Betty Campbell, Ella Mitchell, Agnes Roe, Grace Stevenson, Hilda Watson, Cathie Foulke, Miss Knapp, Mrs. Reg. Scoble, Mrs. J. S. Patterson, Mrs. Ed. McIntyre, and Messrs. Reg. Scoble, Bob Foulke, Jim Gibbs, Ed. McIntyre and Bert Simpson.

At the close of the meeting all the fruit, vegetables and flowers were auctioned, this being a great success financially. The Young People's Society wish to thank everyone who helped to make the evening such a success, and to specially thank every one who sent donations. Next Monday evening the society will meet as usual at 8 o'clock. There will be a special speaker, and plans will be made for the annual banquet and concert which is to be held on Friday, October 28. A cordial invitation is given to Normal students to attend these meetings.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S. Hear Lecture—Yesterday evening the St. Andrew's Y.P.S. were given a real treat when C. L. Harrison gave an interesting lecture on "The Forbidden Plateau." Mr. Harrison stressed the urgent need for preservation of the forests on Vancouver Island if they are going to be an attraction for tourists who come here to see the beauties of our forest and mountain scenery. A large attendance denoted the interest shown by the young people and their friends in this subject. Vocal solos were delightfully rendered by Mr. Abbott. Allan Anderson, president, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Harrison and those who contributed to the enjoyment of the evening.

Ministering Circle—The Ministering Circle of King's Daughters will meet on Friday at 3 o'clock in the rest rooms, Hibben-Bone Block.

St. Paul's Harvest Social—St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt, will hold a "harvest social" this evening at 8 o'clock in the church hall. An attractive programme has been arranged and will include musical items and dialogues. Refreshments will be served and the evening will conclude with dancing.

Metropolitan W.M.S. "At Home."—The members of the Metropolitan W.M.S. will be "at home" to the ladies of the congregation at the home of Mrs. Arthur Lee, 535 Trutch Street, on Tuesday afternoon, October 11. Mrs. E. F. Church and Mrs. W. H. Whitely will receive with the hostess. A musical programme is being arranged and a pleasant afternoon is assured.

POUND PARTY AT CHILDREN'S AID—The Children's Aid Home, 1234 Pandora Avenue, will welcome the general public to its annual pound party to-morrow afternoon from 3 till 6 o'clock. ## Opening Recital Musical Art At Shrine To-night

Viola Wasterlain, the young and talented violinist to appear on the Musical Art Society's programme this evening, is a violin artist by natural gifts and superior training. Her tone is of a beautiful singing quality, and her bow ability limitless and subtle. The Corelli-Thompson Sonata to be played by Miss Wasterlain has not been played outside of New York. Miss Wasterlain is fortunate in having Cesar Thompson's personal allowance, as the composer seldom allows anyone to copy it. She won five separate and distinct scholarships from Cesar Thompson, the violinist.

The other young artist to appear on the programme with Arthur Johnson, tenor, is Barbara Gustance, who comes to Victoria from Vancouver, with the commendation of the great Paderewski himself for the manner in which she played the Paderewski Variations (Thema Varié) when Miss Gustance was studying in New York. These two artists, in addition to being able to give excellent account of themselves as musicians, are possessed of character and personality.

Victorians who heard Arthur Johnson when he sang here in 1929, will be interested to learn he has since sung in light and grand opera. We hope declared Johnson to be the best "Nanki-Poo" he had ever appeared with.

To-night's recital will be held in the Shrine Auditorium.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

No one ailment of babyhood is as prevalent as constipation. I doubt if this would be so if the mother were not so utterly terrified of a missed daily movement. It is possible for there to be bowel activity, yet from the moment the baby is born we begin to help him out with physics and laxatives. It seems very wrong to me. The best way to turn our attention to the diet that is responsible for the constipation, and aid the constipation temporarily with some mechanical irritant, such as a soap stick or suppository, is to adjust its own tangle.

SUGAR—THE VILLAIN

The hard, dry stool that is difficult to pass is the true constipated stool. Just a missed daily movement, followed the next day by a soft stool, for there is nothing that baby is constipated but probably lacks sufficient food to provoke a daily action.

One of the commonest causes of constipation is a lack of sugar in the formula. Sugar is a vital part of a cow's milk formula, and it is the one element that is often "skimped." A formula composed largely of milk and without a balance of sugar is almost always a constipating one. A rearrangement of the amounts of different ingredients in the formula may be sufficient to end the constipation. On the contrary, formulae overloaded with sugar are almost as constipating, which fact proves, if it proves anything, that to exceed the standard amount of sugar in the formula is invariably to court trouble.

TOO MUCH MILK

Exceedingly rich milks are quite often constipating, just as skimmed milks tend to be. The milk of ordinary grade cows is the best choice.

Boiling the baby's milk may cause a certain amount of constipation, but this can be overcome by adding more fresh fruit juice to the diet, though continuing the wise procedure of boiling the milk.

Just general undernourishment, either from lack of food, or from persistent vomiting which causes baby to lose large quantities of the nourishment he imbibes, is almost invariably accompanied by constipation. This condition certainly does not demand that baby be dosed with peyals, but that his undernourishment, or the vomiting that is causing him to lose nourishment be corrected. This is attaching the real enemy, while laxatives simply put up a smoke screen that prevents us from recognizing the cause of the trouble.

There is no really drastic step necessary when baby has a regular movement every other day. Feed the baby regularly, watch his rates of gain, keep his formula as standard as possible, like the standard one, manage a regular hour for evacuations, so as to promote good habits, and forget constipation. It gets far too much attention.

We offer a leaflet, "Constipation and Its Causes," which any reader may obtain by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with each request for it to this department.

Strawberry Vale W.I. Plans Its Fall Activities

At a meeting of the Strawberry Vale Women's Institute held yesterday afternoon tentative plans were formed to give a silver tea at Colquhoun Hall, the date to be arranged later. The tea will take place in the afternoon, and will be followed by a card party in the evening. The proceeds of these events will be used towards the purchase price of a flag for the Girl Guides, recently formed under the direction of Miss Stocken. The enthusiasm of the company is well sustained, the girls evincing a keen interest and aptitude for the work.

An interesting report of the T.M.C.A. Travelers' Aid was read, giving an insight into the exceedingly helpful work accomplished by the association.

The fire insurance and taxes on Strawberry Vale Hall were ordered to be paid, and a quantity of wood purchased.

Correspondence was received from one of the members, Mrs. Hemaley, who left Victoria recently on a visit to England, and in which she gave some of her impressions of conditions there.

The president, Mrs. J. Harper, will act as convener for the series of card parties which will be held during the winter months. These social evenings

Little business was on the agenda, but the ladies arranged for a parcel post and novelty sale to be held on Nov. 4.

Health outweighs everything

Disease does not simply
"come to you". Wrong
living invites disease;
Right living banishes it.

from Our Morning Mail—

Orkney, Sask., July 17, 1932.

"Your Roman Meal is the greatest food I ever met. I was nearly dead with indigestion and other ailments, but now our doctor tells me I am the healthiest man of my age he has ever seen."

(Name on request)

We receive scores of such letters daily.

If you will stop to consider for a moment you will realize how true it is that "Health outweighs everything".

Is there anything you would trade for your good health? Is there anything you would not give to recover it? That is why we have been preaching "Health, Health, Health" for years.

Good health is not an accident; neither is disease. A weakened body invites disease. And what is a weakened body? A weakened body is one in which the blood contains an excess of acid residues from some systemic abuse, most commonly the excessive use of acid-forming foods. How can this be overcome? By eating foods that rebuild in the blood a normal alkaline reserve, "Nature's first defence against disease"—alkali-forming foods. Of such foods Roman Meal is the standard. This, with milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, will transform the blood to a normally alkaline state. Bekus Paddy and Lishus are equally effective. These are natural foods. These are the foods without which the human system cannot resist the stubborn attacks of sickness and disease. Their persistent use would soon banish much of the omnipresent disease in civilization.

St. Andrew's Guild Receives Reports

The monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was held in the church hall on Monday afternoon, Mrs. M. R. Pearce presided over a large attendance and opened the meeting with national exercises. The secretary and treasurer's reports were submitted and proved.

Miss Nicholl, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Boyd

and Mrs. Elliot, visiting ladies, gave reports of many visits paid and flowers distributed to sick friends. Mrs. Jeffray, corresponding secretary, gave reports regarding letters sent to friends who had suffered bereavement. Letters of appreciation for flowers were also submitted to the members.

There had been a good response made to the jam and fruit-shower for the benefit of the Children's Aid Home. Arrangements were made for several social functions to take place at a later date.

Mrs. Pearce and Mrs. Boyd served tea, which was much appreciated. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mrs. Sanson to the tea hostesses, terminated a happy meeting.

CHAPTER WILL PRESENT PRIZES

At the regular monthly meeting of the Florence Nightingale Chapter I.O.E.F. held at headquarters Monday afternoon, with the regent, Mrs. K. The chapter decided to make a presentation of three prizes to the sixth grade of the George Jay School for domestic science.

The standard-bearer reminded all members of Tralagar Day, October 21, and hopes that as many as possible will be at the cenotaph on that day. The flag-pocket belonging to the chapter is to be given to the Boy Scouts. A donation of $5 per month was made to help the old lady who is alone and has no means of support. The bazaar sewing meetings for this month were arranged, the first will be held at the home of Mrs. Hyslop, 1634 Pinewood, on Wednesday, October 12, and the second meeting at the home of Mrs. Baylis, 330 Robertson Street, Wednesday, October 26.

Reviews B.C. Laws Affecting Women And Children

Laws on the statute books of British Columbia affecting women and children was the subject of a most interesting and instructive paper read by Mrs. Dorothy Spurr, secretary, at the monthly dinner meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Greater Victoria held yesterday evening at the Poppy-Eli. Mrs. Spurr dealt chiefly with the acts and amendments brought into force since 1930, covering amendments to the Marriage Act, Deserted Wives' Maintenance Act, the Sex Disqualification Removal Act, passed at the 1931 session of the Legislature, whereby women are no longer disqualified either by sex or marriage from holding any civil or judicial office or carrying on any civil profession or vocation; Official Guardian Act Amendment, Marriage Act, Moving Pictures Act, Vital Statistics Act, Insurance Act and Act for the Education of Soldiers' Dependent Children. At present there are 130 high school students receiving benefit under this act—ninety-seven at $125 per annum and thirty-four at $100 per annum.

The amendment to Public Schools Act, dealing with the school for the deaf, dumb and blind; amendment to the Shops Regulation Act were also reviewed.

A discussion of some of the acts followed, in which Mrs. Spurr explained certain provisions in detail. Mrs. Alma Russell, president, was in the chair with about twenty members present. The club voted to hold its dinner and business meeting as formerly on the first Tuesday of each month, the time of the business meeting to be announced later. It was decided to hold a Halloween bridge to raise money for the club's welfare fund.

Is It Always the Daughter-in-law Who Is to Be Pitted When She Must Live With Her Husband's Mother?—Pity the Mother-in-law, Cries One of Them, for It Is She Who Must Bend Her Will to the Younger Woman's

AN ELDERLY woman said to me the other day: "Everyone pities the woman who has to live with her husband's mother but, believe me, if you have tears to shed it is the mother-in-law over whom you should weep. It is her shoulder on which you should sob, for hers is the harder lot. She is one who is called upon to make the greater sacrifices. She is the one whose existence is turned to cinders, ashes and dust by being thrust into an enforced relationship that develops all that is worst in family life."

"Of course, I will admit that the daughter-in-law has her just grievances. She naturally wants her home to herself and to monopolize her husband. And there is no denying that we old people get set in our ways and prejudices, and that we are often a little bossy and find it difficult to watch anybody else making a pie without putting our finger in it, and if our daughters-in-law adjusted themselves to us it would take a bit of doing, as the English say. Some scrapping of their own personal opinions. The use of some tact and diplomacy in handling us."

"But do they waste any finesse on dealing with a mere mother-in-law? Ever a bit of it. It is we who have to do the adjusting to them, if there is any adjusting done. It is we who have to bend the hinges of our stiff old opinions and ideas, not they. For there is no other human being so adamant and unchangeable in her views, so cocksure she is always right and knows all as a daughter-in-law."

"And she is equally sure that her mother-in-law is a moron whose years of living and experience have taught her nothing, and who has raised a large family of children without ever having learned how to change a baby's dity."

"Naturally it is not soothing to the vanity of a woman who has been celebrated in her community as a notable housekeeper and a model mother, and what adds gall and wormwood to the situation is the knowledge that she is an unwelcome guest and that her daughter-in-law would rid herself of her by any means, fair or foul, if she could."

"Oh, the humiliation of that! Oh, the bitterness of knowing you are not wanted and being forced to eat bread that is begrudged you! Oh, the desperate loneliness of living in a home in which you are an alien! I have been told that among certain savages it is the custom to kill people when they get old. Sometimes I think it is a more humane custom than ours of forcing them to live with their in-laws."

"Worse still for many of us mothers-in-law is the realization that we are firebrand in our sons' houses that threatens to destroy them. We know we are a constant source of friction between them and their wives, and that they would be happier without us. We have seen them afraid to show us any affection. Afraid to repay us any of the money that we slaved and saved for, to put them through college and give them a start in the world, afraid even to hold a casual conversation with us because of the scenes they would have to go through afterward with silly and jealous wives who vented their husbands' love for the mothers who bore them."

"It is not easy for a woman who has been at the head of her own house for thirty-five or forty years to take second place in another woman's house. Nor is it easy for any professional to watch a amateur bungle the game without offering a word or two of expert advice. And especially is it hard for a mother to stand by in silence and see an inexperienced little bride poison her son with bad cooking and waste his hard-earned money."

"But unless a mother-in-law chews off the end of her tongue to keep from making a suggestion and sits on her hands to keep from turning in and taking a job right, the daughter-in-law accuses her of interfering, and there one more mark against the poor woman who is merely trying to help. My daughter-in-law should resent any counsel from their mothers-in-law criticism, while they sit at the feet of any woman who will tell them how to make a three-egg cake or cut out baby rompers, is something that is that mysterious power that created cats and dogs and in-laws knows."

"So there the poor mother-in-law is, and she must decide between two courses, neither of which brings any happiness to her. She must be either a dummy or a trouble maker. She must never make a suggestion or offer criticism. She must efface herself entirely and be a grandma figure-head around the house. All of which is martyrdom to an intelligent, vigorous, active and strong-minded woman. But if she does not, if she is outspoken about what she thinks and attempts to take any part in the household management, she becomes a bone of contention and a first aid to divorce."

"Certainly no two women ever should have to live in the same house, specially when they both love the same man. But sometimes it is a necessary arrangement. Mostly, I think, the mothers-in-law make a greater effort to along with the daughters-in-law than the daughters-in-law do with them."

"Perhaps we are not easy to live with, but I think these young women might show us a little more mercy, a little more patience, a little more understanding of how hard our positions are. For they are so rich. They have the husbands we have given them. They have their children, their homes, their busy crowded days and we have nothing. Not even a warm place at our sons' fireside, nor a place in their lives."

Life in Olden Babylon

III—DRIVING SICKNESS AWAY

When we are ill or have trouble with our teeth, we are likely to call upon a doctor or dentist. When Babylonian was sick or had a toothache, he called upon a priest "to drive a demon away."

Image of a demon was placed in a small boat.

a house, but no one notices him. He leaves, but no one sees him go." To make him leave—that was the problem. Several methods were used, among them the uttering of a prayer like this: "Away, demon, go away! Leave as the smoke rises to the heaven! Never return to my body. By Shamaah, the strong god of the sun, be cast out." If that did not work, the man in pain might take other measures. Perhaps he would have the priest sprinkle him with water taken from a sacred river.

It was supposed to be hard, if not impossible, to see a demon; but the Babylonians were bold enough to form images of demons. The demons were made to look ugly and horrible—none of them would have a prize at a beauty show!

The image of a demon was sometimes placed in a little boat. When the boat was tipped over, the demon was supposed to be drowned!

Persons who paid special honor to the god of fire had the demon's image cast into the flames. In some cases, the image was bound hand-and-foot, poison was placed in its mouth, and its body was slashed before being hurled into the fire. A man who went to all that trouble must have been sick, indeed.

Another method of treating disease in Babylon was to swallow ill-tasting juices pressed from herbs. The idea was to make the demon lose all comfort inside the body, so that it would want to leave of its own free will.

(This story should be played in "History" section of your scrapbook, may be used as a school topic.) To-morrow—Homes in Babylonian.

ALBERTA PREMIER GOES TO OTTAWA

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Oct. 5.—Bound for Ottawa as spokesman for the western governments seeking increased unemployment relief expenditures, Premier John E. Brownlee was expected to leave for the east to-day.

He is going to the capital, it is understood, on the call of Premier Bennett, who at a recent meeting in Calgary promised to consider the West's request for greater unemployment aid. It is reported the federal government is ready to assume 40 per cent of relief expenditures, with the provinces and cities bearing the other 60 per cent.

A new transport service is to be started in New Guinea.

CABINET GAP IN AUSTRALIA

Resignation of Hon. J. E. Fenton as Postmaster-General Accepted

Canberra, Australia, Oct. 5.—The resignation of Hon. J. E. Fenton, Postmaster-General in the Australian Government, has been accepted by Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons.

On September 26 Mr. Fenton had tendered his resignation because he did not support the tariff proposals of the ministry in their every detail, but the Prime Minister asked him to reconsider his action. The Postmaster-General remained steadfast, however, and his views that the Ottawa Conference agreements were not suitable to Australia's needs remain adamant.

Mr. Fenton announced he would continue to support the government on all other matters.

The resignation of the Postmaster-General was the second from the Lyons' cabinet. Hon. E. W. Hawker, Minister of Markets and Transport, withdrew from the ministry September 20, because it would not support his views that parliamentary salaries should be cut more than 25 per cent.

Little-known Glands Rule Action of Mind and Body Throughout Life

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

From time to time in these columns articles have appeared—listing the glands of internal secretion and emphasizing the importance, for the health of the human body, the glands have been characterized as an "interlocking directorate" controlling most of the functions of the body.

At various periods in human life, they exercise specific functions. He divides the life of the human being into three periods. The time from birth to adolescence, from adolescence to the prime of life, and from the prime of life through the period of decay and degeneration to death.

Roughly speaking, these three periods include the years from one to thirteen, from thirteen to forty-five, and from forty-five to seventy. The first period is that of growth and development, the second is the period of the final physical structure and of the power of reproducing, and the third the period of breaking down.

During the first period of growth the thymus gland and a small gland in the brain called the pineal gland have special functions. In the second period the sex glands are especially active, with associated actions by the thyroid, pituitary and the adrenals. In the third period there is a gradual decrease, if not stopping, of the activity of all of the glands.

The thymus gland in man is large during the first eight or nine months of life and then practically disappears. In case it persists and continues to secrete considerable amounts of its secretion into the body it brings about the "thymic" diseases, that are serious to health and life. If, on the other hand, it fails to act as long as it should it produces a different type of change.

If the thymus continues to secrete beyond the time when it should have stopped, the person has a skin that is soft, smooth and velvety, a sort of peach-like complexion. If it is a man he may not shave at all, or perhaps only once a week. Such patients appear younger than their age. The hair over the body will be scanty, the teeth rather bluish-white in color and not uniform in size or development. Such patients also are likely to have a low blood pressure, a slow pulse, and to be easily fatigued.

Incidentally, Dr. Timme believes that people whose thymus action persists have a changed mental makeup, remaining childlike, self-centred, slightly in their mental processes and imitative, looking for protection and care, and more or less unfitted for the active affairs of life.

In contrast to those in whom the action of the thymus gland persists for an undue length of time are those in whom the action discontinues too soon. Such cases apparently grow old a little too soon. They are short in stature. Their body hair develops unusually early and is thick. The blood pressure is usually too high. Such patients are nervous, peevish, easily aroused to anger and resentful. Although they seem far advanced while yet young, they are actually immature completely.

The pineal gland is a tiny glandular body in the skull, at one time thought to be the remnant of an extra eye. When this gland material is fed to tadpoles they rapidly change their color. One investigator found that removal of the gland in animals resulted in a rapid wasting and development of the sex organs. Moreover, the early breaking down of this gland is associated with great fatigue and inability of proper action in the muscular system. There seems to be no question but that all of the glands are related and that some of the functions of this gland may be taken over by others when some of its functions modified by others.

SAMUEL SAYS PACTS MISTAKE

British Liberal Ex-Minister Deals With Trade Treaties Drafted at Ottawa

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 5.—Results of the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference were described variously as substantial advance toward a policy of co-operation, as "preposterous," and as "a disaster."

The Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture, meeting in London, unanimously passed a resolution welcoming the conference as bringing a "substantial advance toward a policy of co-operation."

At the same time Sir Herbert Samuel, former Liberal Home Secretary, who resigned recently from the National Government, said in a speech at Darwin the agreements were "preposterous."

Sir Herbert maintained that when the agreements are published, it will be found neither in India nor in the Dominions will the cotton trade of the United Kingdom receive any appreciable concessions. He denounced also the proposal to impose a heavy duty on cod liver oil from Norway in order to divert part of the trade in this commodity to Newfoundland. He said his audience how anyone should dare to propose this "enormous duty" on a medicine "essential to the life and health of a vast number of children in the poorest homes."

Mr. Samuel also pointed out that the agricultural chambers, however, expressed satisfaction the agreements at Ottawa recognized the principle that agriculture in the United Kingdom should have a prior claim to the home markets.

Victoria Reps To Oppose Ladysmith In Feature Battle

British Can Boast of Real Veterans in Golf World

Quimet & Youngster Along-side of Vardon, Braid, and Herd

Finnish Running Stars Are Self-trained Athletes

GOLFING FANS of the United States have a host of following. Quimet is a top-notch golfer, because he is thirty-eight, and because he is a champion when he was a boy, galleries regard him as the grandpa of golf. Compared to some of England's playing veterans, Quimet is still a mere youngster. This year Vardon, Braid, and Herd all played in the British open championship, and all are over the age of sixty. The Scottish professional team this year in their match against the English, he is sixty-four. Vardon won two British open championships after he was forty; when close to fifty he tied for second in the U.S. open, an event which he had won twenty years before, in 1900.

This year Braid, five times winner of the British open, was sixty-two. He celebrated the fact by shooting around Walton Heath course in 66, a new course record. When a man is a real golfer in the old country he stays good a long time. Braid won the British open when he was thirty-eight and won it again when he was forty. That entitles him to consider that he is still a young man as a long-lasting fine golfer.

Other sports have their winning old fellows, too. Stanley Zerk won his first world heavyweight wrestling championship at forty-one, and had to win it back later. Bob Fitzsimmons won the light-heavyweight boxing championship when he was forty-one. Quimet has a couple of years to go yet before he can match those boys.

Finnish runners have their own method of training. While boys of this age in the United States are at an athletic club to learn about running, the Finns rely upon themselves. Of course there is a great deal of competition for track and field in Finland, and running knowledge is more or less common. The boys learn it along with their bed-time stories.

Volmar Ito-Hollo, who easily won the 3,000-metre steeplechase at the Olympic Games, and who has broken some of Nurmi's records, has this to say about coaches: "No coach will tell me how to train. I have my own methods." He walks about six miles every morning after breakfast. Ito-Hollo is a working man, too, a printer in a Finnish printing house. After his day's work he goes out to the track. "To start," he says, "I do about five fast 100-metre dashes and then run a good fast mile." After that he finishes off the day with some exercises. A couple of messages a week keep his muscles limber. In the winter he does a lot of skiing to keep his muscles fit. That's why he runs so fast. "I have been running since I was a child. That's why they keep on plugging when the boys with great form are so tired they can't keep up the grind."

No one, except Bobby Jones, knows whether or not he will ever play in a big tournament again. The British, however, had it all figured out. Just before the British open this year one of London's largest and most modern newspapers told why Jones wasn't in the open.

"Bobby was anxious to go," read the article. "Then he drew back. Why? Because he has two children. And, like most other famous fathers in America to-day, he lives in hourly terror of what may happen to them. He feels that he cannot leave them and play golf, with that ease of mind that is necessary to win a championship. Poor Bobby!"

During the British open championship at Sandwich one of the gentlemen who approached two of the players waiting for players to shoot.

"Stand back, please!" he said, impatiently. "Don't you know anything about golf?"

The two old men looked at one another sheepishly and retreated to the rough. They were Vardon and Braid, two of the big winners of bygone days, who between them took eleven British open titles.

In the morning, starting about 10.30 o'clock a picked team from the Victoria and District League will oppose a "rep" eleven from the Junior League, while in the afternoon another all-star squad from the First Division will meet the crack Ladysmith team. ## FISHING CLUB OFFERS CUPS

Cowichan Angling Club Offers Two Trophies For Salmon Fishermen

Duncan, Oct. 5.—At a meeting of the Cowichan Angling Club held on Monday night it was decided to offer the two cups for competition during the month of October, one for the heaviest salmon caught on rod and line, and the other for the heaviest legal day's catch on rod and line. This competition is in addition to the regular annual and standing awards.

In an effort to insure there always being someone on hand to weigh fish, the committee members, as well as all committee members, were appointed official weighers. The resignation of Major W. G. Fanning as secretary was accepted with regret. Frank Reeves was appointed in his stead. Major Fanning will continue to look after the interests of the club at Cowichan Bay.

The committee endorsed the resolution of the British Chamber of Commerce protesting against net fishing by commercial fishermen for bait purposes in the otherwise closed area at Crofton. It being felt that net fishing there was being killed off in this way.

The names of several new members were accepted.

RUGBY MEETINGS BILLED TO-NIGHT

To set closing dates for entries in the three local leagues and make further plans for the season, rugby officials and team delegates will meet in the offices of Ker & Stephenson at 8 o'clock this evening.

Three hours later the Victoria Rugby League Association will meet at 10.15 Broad Street, Colonel Cooper, chairman of the association, has issued an invitation to all men wishing to referee this season to be present.

PITTSBURGH TO GET NO HOCKEY

Yellowjackets, International League Entry, Will Be Broken Up

Pittsburgh, Oct. 5.—Pittsburgh, which a week ago was sought as a site for a hockey franchise by both the National and International leagues, to-day faces the prospect of having no hockey at all this winter.

Elmer Whitehill, representing banking interests who hold control of the International League franchise here, said yesterday the Yellowjackets—last year's entry in the loop—would be broken up and sold.

The banking interests hold notes on the team property.

Last Saturday at the National Hockey League meeting in Montreal it was decided to keep the Pittsburgh franchise in the league inactive.

Members of the 1931-32 team will be disposed of as soon as bids are sorted out, Whitehill said.

Montreal Winner In Extra Inning

Lethbridge, Oct. 5.—In a real slugfest before one of the largest crowds to see a baseball battle here, Montreal Royals yesterday defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, 15 to 12, in a closely-fought ten-inning game. The victory brought the Royals within a game of the Leafs on their western barnstorming tour, the Leafs having won seven games and the Royals six.

Because the regulation size, the home run hitters were in great luck. Three runs were chalked up in the extra-inning battle and every one of them went soaring over the fence.

The score:

Royals	15	25
Leafs	12	15

Batteries: Batters and Grabowski; Centre: Hingland and Crouse.

This will be the first time in many years that a Ladysmith club has played here. The up-islanders are reported to have a first-class team and should provide stiff competition for the Victoria representatives. Officials of the L.F.A. will select a formidable lineup to pit against the visitors so a fine match should be seen.

The morning match should also produce some good football as the junior teams boast many fine players.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At a meeting held yesterday evening the Victoria and District League was formally organized. G. Spence Matthews was elected president with Alex. Campbell as secretary-treasurer.

Only one match will be played in the First Division on Saturday afternoon with the Jokers opposing the North Wards at the Heywood Avenue grounds. The match will get under way at 3 o'clock with Aloock as referee.

In the only other senior fixture for Saturday, the all-star team from the Victoria division of the Pacific Coast Football Association will meet Nanaimo in the first of the intercity series against the first division clubs of the Coast League. The match will start at 3 o'clock.

The Victoria line-up has been announced as follows: Louis De Costa (Equimist), goal; Joe Watt (Equimist), full back; Terry Peers (Victoria West), half back; J. Murray (Victoria City), full back; Terry Peers (Victoria West), half back; J. Murray (Victoria City), full back; Terry Peers (Victoria West), half back; J. Murray (Victoria City), full back.

LINK DEMPSEY WITH KEARNS

Former Heavyweight Champ Rumored Considering Return Under Former Manager

Dempsey Broke Feud at Walker-Schmeling Bout; Canzonieri Battles To-night

New York, Oct. 5.—A couple of world champions on one card, and a coy situation revolving around Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, lifted the fight business into the sports picture. Rube Roth, Lou Gehrig and the Yankees have more or less over-run the past ten days.

To-night at Ebbets Field, Tony Canzonieri, the lightweight champ, heads the big fight card of the outdoor season in a ten-round bout against Frankie Petrolle, brother of Billy Petrolle, the Furgo Express. Petrolle has been substituted for Ray Miller, who was forced from the charity card by illness.

Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized in New York as champion of the lightweight, has found himself in a bit of a predicament. He is content with a semi-final berth on the same card against Jack Redman, a New York light-heavyweight, and is not sure he can handle the publicity.

Meanwhile the gossipers are busy. They are saying that Jack Dempsey was considering campaigning again in the colors of the Jack Kearns stable, under the banner of the man who made him his bitterest enemy for the past seven years.

The feud broke up a week ago when Dempsey, leaping into the ring to be introduced before the Walker-Schmeling fight, either was dazzled by the ring lights or in full possession of his faculties, dashed first to Kearns, now managing Walker, and wrung his hands.

Coast All-stars To Hold Practice

Members of the Victoria "Rep" football team will hold a practice session at the Pacific Coast League, which will oppose Nanaimo City here Saturday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park in the first intercity fixture of the season, will hold a special workout tomorrow evening at 7.30 o'clock at the Victoria of France. The squad will work out for an hour, and all players are asked to attend.

RISES TO DEFENCE OF ORGANIZED FOOTBALL

C. V. Milton Supports Cause of British Columbia Football Association in Present Controversy in British Columbia; Points Out That Organized Sport Is Universal

By C. V. MILTON. Endorsed by A. Marshall, B.C.F.A., and James Adam, D.F.A.

The position in which the game of soccer finds itself in British Columbia to-day has given rise to serious thought on the part of many on both sides of the controversy, and a few words written without special reference to local conditions, would, it seems, not be out of place.

When the question is reviewed in the broadest manner possible, one cannot fail to appreciate the fact that any sport, to be kept alive, must be governed in such a way that it becomes universal in its application of rules and regulations, or how can world-wide competition take place?

What kind of plights would, say, tennis and golf, probably the two most popular games in the world, be in without the government of a central authority? Where would be those contests of world-wide interest, which have done so much to make these two games head the popularity list? With any conflict of authority, with the present divergence of opinion, the game would be impossible.

For it is an unfortunate fact that, though it may be possible for all the players of one district in the world to carry on without being associated with the parent body, the historical facts show that if such severance is persisted in, the game they play gradually differs in details, and later in essentials from the original. Such untied organizations feel safe in introducing new rules or in ignoring those of the governing body. Before the proper organization, has found its way to the public schools of England. The great classic of "Tom Brown's School Days" reads strange to the modern player, but a detailed account of a game played in one of the public schools of those days would reveal such a divergence of method of play that one could hardly recognize them as one and the same game.

Neither were they the same, but gradually the game was organized, rules concerning tripping, hacking, handling and carrying were agreed to, and organized soccer came into being, the essential of which was a central governing body, with the final result that soccer now shares with golf and tennis the distinguishing characteristics of universality.

At that early stage of the game, some seventy odd years ago, occurred the only successful case of secession known to the game. Those clubs who favored carrying the ball refused to agree to the rules as laid down by the governing body, and the result was the formation of the Rugby Union, which broke away from a parent body, rather than the game, even before the Football Association was formed. It can hardly be said that they broke away from a parent body, rather than the game, even before the Football Association was formed. It can hardly be said that they broke away from a parent body, rather than the game, even before the Football Association was formed.

Motorcycle Club To Stage Annual Hillclimb Monday

Entry List of About Twenty-five Expected for Competitions at Mount Douglas; Champions in All Classes Will Defend Honors; Paul Girardeau Challenge Cup at Stake in Feature Test; First Event Scheduled at 2 o'clock; Entries Close To-night

With any entry list of twenty-five expected the fifth annual hill-climb of the Victoria Motorcycle Club will be staged on Monday afternoon at Mount Douglas, starting at 2 o'clock. Club members are now whipping their bikes into shape for the grueling test which is expected to draw a record attendance. Reg. Williams, president of the club, stated to-day he expected one of the finest exhibitions of riding since the event was inaugurated. The climb will be held rain or shine.

As in former years there will be four classes, divided according to motor size. There is also a possibility of a fifth ride being staged for bikes of special makes.

All last year's winners are entered in their respective classes, out to defend their laurels against many newcomers. An efficient staff has been appointed to handle the show, while members of the local Kiwanis Club will also assist. The ride will be made according to the rules of the American Motorcycle Association.

Opening this year's programme will be the ride for owners of twenty-one cubic inch motors. For the last three years this class has not been included, but there are sufficient owners of this year's class to display the ability of their "iron lungs" to the fans.

PARROTT IS RIDING WELL

Victoria Rider and Partner Cling to Second Place in Toronto Bike Grind

Toronto, Oct. 5.—With large crowds cheering continually, Reg. Williams and Al Crossley, British Empire team in the six-day bike race here, managed to hold their joint lead and added a couple of laps to their advantage during the night. The team of Gus Rues and Gus Rues was eliminated yesterday evening and only ten teams remain of the thirteen which started the long and weary grind at 11.01 Monday morning. The riders passed the 1,000-mile mark around noon.

Electric timing will be used in all events. By this system, if two riders go "over the top" in the same event, the one making the quickest ride will be the winner. The clocks are controlled by tapes at the foot and top of the climb.

In the division for forty-five-inch motors Frank Thomas, last year's winner, will defend his honors. In the seventy-four-inch class, Clyde Paulson, winner last year, will be on hand to defend his honors against all comers. In the feature event for the Paul Girardeau Challenge Cup, which is open to all bikes, Bob Shanks will defend the trophy.

Annual Shake-up In Major Baseball Pilots Starts

Walter Johnson And Dan Howley Given the Gate

Managers of Washington Senators and Cincinnati Reds Relieved of Positions at Head of American and National League Teams; Firing of Johnson Comes as Shock to Baseball World; Other Managers May Go; Babe Ruth Will Not Retire; McGraw Says He Is Through

New York, Oct. 5.—The annual turnover in baseball managers, moving at a faster pace this year than usual, already has left two major league vacancies—at Cincinnati and Washington.

Failure of Dan Howley to lift Cincinnati Reds out of the National League cellar prepared the baseball world for his recent release but there was considerable surprise when Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, announced yesterday evening that Walter Johnson was through as manager.

Johnson, the "big train," a terror to American League batsmen for twenty years, had managed the club since 1929. The Senators finished sixth in that year, second in 1930 and third in 1931 and 1932. Neither Griffith nor Sid Well at Cincinnati have given any inkling as to their new choices.

OTHER CHANGES POSSIBLE

There may be other changes in managerial ranks before the 1933 season opens, but most of the pilots already have signed contracts. Of the three managers who were appointed in the midst of the 1932 season, Bill Terry, New York Giants, and Charley Grimm, Chicago Cubs, already are under contract. Marty McManus, who succeeded John Collins as leader of Boston Red Sox, has not yet received a contract for next season.

Connie Mack, tall leader of Philadelphia Athletics, finally has explained his sale of Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes to Chicago White Sox. He was due, in part at least, to "financial reasons." He adds no other players will be sold until after the close of next season.

John McGraw explained his connection with a deal to transfer a National League franchise to Montreal was merely in an advisory capacity to Leo Dundand and Joseph A. Cattanchi, prominent Canadian sportsmen. Phil Ball, St. Louis Browns, and Sam Breadon, St. Louis Cardinals, both turned down offers for their franchises.

McGRAW THROUGH

McGraw himself made it plain he had no idea whatever of returning to an active role in baseball.

Babe Ruth has no intention of retiring as an active player before the end of the 1933 season at the earliest. He probably will take another "cut" in salary, but expert observers believe he will be offered something like $58,000 or $70,000 for next year.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW SATURDAY

Entries Close To-morrow Night; Big Entry List and Many Varieties Expected

Entries for the second annual chrysanthemum show which is being held by the Victoria Horticultural Society in the Shrine Hall on Saturday, should be made with F. E. Boulter, the secretary, by to-morrow night. The society hopes that in so arranging its prize list to meet the requirements of the smallest garden, all who have any exhibit varieties will be able to display them at the show on Saturday.

No entry fees are required. Nearly 100 classes of autumn flowers have been classified, and a number of the newer varieties of chrysanthemums and Michaelmas daisies will be shown. What is expected to feature the show will be the display of bowls and baskets, in addition to the decorated tables, which must be arranged with outside grown flowers only.

This will be the last opportunity of showing dahlias for the year, and these alone are expected to comprise a large entry. The Banksian medal given by the Royal Horticultural Society will be presented to the exhibitor securing the highest number of points in the show. Prize lists are obtainable at the local stores or from Mr. Boulter, phone 28490.

BAER ADDS ANOTHER VICTORY IN COMEBACK

While Max Schmeling was pounding out a victory over Mickey Walker in New York, another Max was drubbing Tuffy Griffiths in a major heavyweight contest staged in Chicago. He was Max Baer, California heavy, on his second trip up the ladder. Baer definitely proved he was a contender for a match with Sharkey or Schmeling by knocking out the Sioux City fighter in the seventh of their ten-round bout. Above the two fighters are shown in the seventh round with Griffiths, left, dodging under Baer's right hand.

KRUSKAMP TO WRESTLE HERE

Denver Heavyweight Matched With Al Perlea on Pacific Stadiums Card

Friday evening's wrestling show at the Pacific Stadium arena, Yates Street, will feature Hardy Kruskamp, Denver heavyweight, and Al Perlea, Spain, in the main event.

In the second feature bout an attempt is being made to match "Rocky" Brooks, local heavyweight, against Pat Riley, Chicago. The first bout will start at 8.45 o'clock.

In his last appearance in a local ring Kruskamp took two straight falls from "Wild Bill" Donovan, San Francisco. Recently in Vancouver Kruskamp gave Bob Kruse, rugged Portland grappler, a hard match. Perlea will be making his first appearance in Victoria.

Both bouts will be over six ten-minute rounds and women with escorts will be admitted free to the show.

LIBERALS BACK CREDIT REFORM

McGeer Sweeps Convention Into Cheering Unanimity For His "Controlled Inflation"

Day of Credit Arriving For World and Money Disappearing, He Says

Special and Canadian Press Dispatches

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—Dominant personality, strident voice and oratorical mastery of G. G. McGeer, K.C., back once more at what Chairman Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith characterized as the "nicest family reunion," late Tuesday swept delegates to the Liberal Association of British Columbia convention into cheering unanimity with his plan for "controlled inflation" and general credit reform.

"We have driven Christ out of the citadel of government and put the money-changers in control," cried Mr. McGeer in a vibrant voice at the climax of his speech.

When Mr. McGeer, with all the virility and force he commands, laid before the convention a carefully worded resolution in support of his currency policy he precipitated what many regarded as an acrimonious argument. He ended triumphantly with a "day of credit" they speak of in a crescendo of approving "ayes."

It was "Gerry" McGeer's afternoon, and he grinned with satisfaction as he left the platform after one final rouser.

DAY OF CREDIT—MONEY DISAPPEARING

Mr. McGeer's resolution was first at the afternoon sitting. He was greeted with cheers. His resolution, he said, was aimed at the greatest problem of humanity—finding employment for all and creating purchasing power to distribute among mankind the commodities that people now had the intellectual power to create in unlimited quantities.

Mr. McGeer said he was just as much concerned as any banker about the peril of inflation, because he recognized the necessity of intelligent control of the use of national credit.

But times were changing. This was the day of credit—the day of money was disappearing, he declared. It was also the day of technological progress, making it possible to manufacture commodities with less labor than ever before.

It was the objective of Liberalism to establish a better and sounder civilization, he said. His resolution, he said, was aimed at the greatest problem of humanity—finding employment for all and creating purchasing power to distribute among mankind the commodities that people now had the intellectual power to create in unlimited quantities.

standard, he advocated. That was not the process he advocated.

The policy contemplated was to use the national credit intelligently for the distribution of purchasing power and creation of a better standard of living.

"The policy of inflation the bankers used to denounce was used by the allied governments in the crisis of the war," said Mr. McGeer. The gold standard limitation was ignored in the war.

SEES "NO TERROR" IN IT

"Inflation has no terror for Liberalism," because it must be intelligently controlled," he said. "To say that this method must not be used to save a starving man because it contains a danger is the same as to say that electricity must not be used in a city because it contains the power to destroy the city if not controlled."

LIKE SOLVING FREIGHT RATES

"They try to say that this money problem is complex, but they said that about the freight rates," said Mr. McGeer. "But we solved the rates problem and started the golden stream of grain that made Vancouver the greatest grain port in the world."

"Let us back the Hon. Mackenzie King and the Hon. Ian Mackenzie in the magnificent lead they have given to Canada in this great issue."

"We hear a great deal about the extravagance of governments, but there is one department where the extravagance is extraordinary and that is the department which furnishes the credit of the government," Mr. McGeer went on.

"The government today does not borrow money. It borrows credit. The whole system instead of working for the people works for monopoly."

EASY FOR BOY TO UNDERSTAND

"Attitude of bankers towards inflation is much like the attitude of Tories towards Liberalism."

"What did the federal government do in 1914 when a financial panic threatened. They issued $26,000,000 in notes without an ounce of gold behind them and they have remained in circulation ever since. That was inflation."

"There is nothing about this monetary business that a boy of twelve years can't understand, but financiers want to keep it complicated. They don't want people to understand. When people do understand it they will understand that it is a racket—and then the racket will be over."

Peace and happiness, added Mr. McGeer, will come back to Canada when Liberals are in control.

ATTACKS BANK MONOPOLY

Stuart Henderson said the money of Canada had become the greatest monopoly in the world. Four banks controlled the financial business of Canada. These had interlocking directorates and about twenty men controlled the whole situation.

Peace and happiness, added Mr. McGeer, will come back to Canada when Liberals are in control.

a policy which they would afterwards regret. He said the McGeer resolution advocated inflation and national control of currency not based on the gold standard.

Mr. McGeer denied this was what he advocated.

Mr. Clearhouse finished with difficulty and only after braving determined interruptions from the floor.

D. Dunbar insisted that inflation could be controlled as it had been controlled in the war.

"If the banks can use this system of credit for their own advantage, why can't it be used by the people for the public advantage?" he asked. "Why not keep some of this money for ourselves?"

CALLS IT SOCIALISM

S. T. Kelly of Summerland got a mild round of applause when he expressed the fear that Mr. Henderson was advocating nationalization of banking, life and fire insurance and everything else.

"That is Socialism, not Liberalism," he said. "Anybody it's a federal, not a provincial, question."

"What I favor is not a definite declaration, but a resolution that the question be studied."

This got a round of applause.

"I am surprised to hear a fine man, an elderly Liberal, like Mr. Henderson attack our Canadian banks."

The applause turned to a roar of protest, cat-calls and boos until Mr. Kelly yielded the platform to Capt. S. Leary of Nakup who supported Mr. McGeer.

"We're here acting for the masses of the people, not a few millionaires," he said.

WATCH BANK'S LAWFYERS

There was a clamor for Mr. McGeer to close the debate. He warned the convention to keep its eyes on lawyers who work for banks.

"They're faithful to their clients," he said. He quoted men like Sir Robert Horne, Reginald McKenna and Lou Melchett to show that he was not advocating a bare-brained idea and to show that controlled money was not irresponsible inflation.

"Furthermore the voice of South Huron yesterday showed that the people of Canada endorse Mackenzie King's leadership on this question," he concluded.

RESOLUTION ENDORSED

The vote was finally put and the resolution met unanimous and noisy assent.

ALBERNI DROPS NEW SCHOOL TAX

Special to The Times

Alberni, Oct. 5.—The Alberni council will not raise revenue for ordinary school expenses under amendments to the School Act. On Monday evening Alderman Richardson raised strenuous objection to passing a by-law to levy such charges, protesting citizens of Alberni were taxed enough.

The city has not even fully collected its dog tax," the alderman said, "so how can we expect to collect this?"

Mayor Motion agreed, but said the law was put in the statute books to be used, and that the fact that they had not been used it would be flung in their faces by the government next time they applied for relief.

Alderman Richardson moved elimination of a clause which allowed exemption, and Alderman Bigmore countered with a motion that the by-law be scrapped. Alderman Richardson seconded and the by-law was dropped.

NANAIMO MEN BEREAVED

Nanaimo, Oct. 5.—Edward Gibson, local liquor vendor, has received word of the death of his sister, Mrs. Lucy Anderson of Dunsmuir, California. Mrs. Anderson was a native daughter of Nanaimo. She is survived by two brothers, Dr. Gibson, Vancouver, and M. E. Gibson, Nanaimo, and two sisters, Miss Agnes Gibson, Victoria, and Mrs. Lucier, Alaska.

WELL-TO-DO TO HELP EVICTED

Saanich Finds Hard Problem
in Overdue Rent of Workless

To consider methods of raising a fund from which to assist evicted families, prominent citizens of Saanich will be called into consultation by Reeve Crouch early next week. An emergency meeting of the municipal council was held at Royal Oak on Monday evening and wrestled with the problem for more than two hours before surrendering to the pressure of lack of funds.

When the council had decided that no municipal money could be provided for the assistance of families about to be thrown on the streets, Reeve Crouch offered to raise a fund for the purpose. He recalled his success last winter in securing donations of more than $2,500 and was hopeful that around $1,000 would ensue from appeals to a number of well-to-do residents.

Earlier in the evening the councillors had received particulars of many cases where landlords were taking drastic action through the courts to secure possession of their houses. It was feared that the next few months would record a sharp increase in such cases.

The council was reminded that, when the Union of British Columbia Municipalities recently interviewed the unemployed committee of the government, Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, had warned the mayors and reeves that they would have to head public subscription lists to provide workless families with assistance which would not come within the scope of normal relief allowances.

Councillors commented that they would be unwise to make a change at this time in the basis of municipal relief allowances, in view of the probability that the provincial government will shortly establish a new basis of contribution to municipal relief expenditures.

LIFE INSURANCE IN CANADA STANDS UP

G. D. Finlayson, Dominion
Superintendent, Praises
Stability Shown

Life insurance companies in Canada have withstood the economic turmoil of the Great War of 1914, the influenza epidemic of 1918 and they are now standing up strongly against the present economic depression, and all merit the confidence of the Canadian public for the stable way in which their affairs have been handled.

So affirmed G. D. Finlayson, Dominion Superintendent of Insurance, last week, when, addressing members of the Life Underwriters' Association of Montreal, he lauded the structure of life insurance companies in the Dominion as "safeguarding and encouraging."

"The companies have proved," he declared, "that they could stand up well against war, pestilence, and now economic depression. The only thing that remains to be demonstrated is as to whether or not they can stand up against prosperity. This does not seem a hard thing to do. But we must remember that it was in a period of prosperity that the seeds of depression were sown. When prosperity returns, we must see if we can devise means by which another economic crisis of this kind can be averted."

Mr. Finlayson recalled that during the early days of the Great War in 1914 the question in the minds of the policyholders in Canada was: "Will the life insurance companies pull through?" As the war progressed, and the companies continued sound, alarm abated. Then, in 1918, in the wake of the influenza epidemic, the same question arose again in the minds of the populace.

"You know the answer then," Mr. Finlayson said. "The life insurance companies in Canada, without an exception, came through, and continued to pay every dollar of their obligations." During the next ten years, he continued, the companies increased their business ten-fold. Then came the economic depression, and once more the policyholders are asking of the companies: "Will they pull through? Are our money safe? Are our dependants protected?"

WITHOUT HESITATION
"Up to date, we have no hesitation in answering those questions by saying: We believe every life insurance company merits the confidence of the Canadian public for the stable way in which their affairs have been handled. They are standing up strongly against the present depression, and paying all their obligations. Many of them are making advances by way of policy loans that are more than double the amount being paid out in death claims."

Their stand against war, pestilence and depression has been proved, the Dominion Superintendent of Insurance added, and the question was as to what stand they would make in the face of prosperity. When prosperity was attained, he noted, determined steps would have to be taken to guard against any repetition of the present crisis.

"The public has come to look to life insurance companies and other financial institutions as guarantors of public welfare," he concluded. "Upon these institutions rests the task of giving proper leadership to the people."
